New hotels

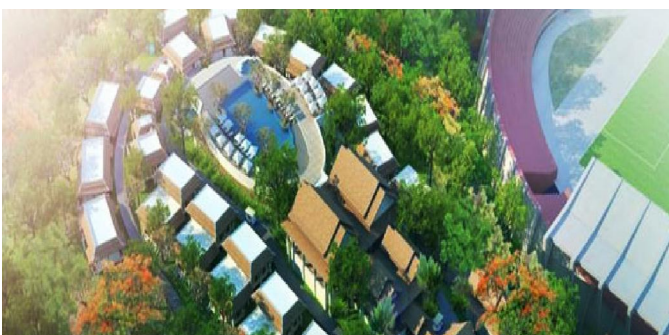

Alila Hotel - Luang Prabang

Many new hotels in Luang Prabang, especially in the 4* and 5* brackets. A selection of hotels to open in Luang Prabang to look out for include the exciting new Alila Property, due to open in October. Formerly a prison, the building has been converted into an all suite hotel, some rooms even boast their very own private watchtower! <http://www.alilahotels.com/luangprabang>

Shinta Mani - Luang Prabang

The popular Shinta Mani hotel in Siem Reap is opening a stunning new property in Luang Prabang. Sat atop a hill, the property boasts stunning views over the town and the surrounding countryside. With a wide variety of rooms to choose from, including suites with a private pool, this is sure to be a popular choice. The hotel should be ready by January 2011. <http://www.shintamani.com/luangprabang/>

News from the company

Tour Guide Workshop 2010

During the summer months Viengchampa has invested heavily in a 6 week long intensive tour guide training workshop. Under the expert guidance of UK Tour Leader Mr Mark Steadman, over 40 of our guides undertook this training. The course involved on the road training, focusing on making the longer road trips more interesting, and intensive classroom training with scenario based tests. This was the first training course of its kind in Laos, and we plan to do this every year. The short term results have been impressive, and we now feel fully confident with our team of guides for this coming high season. The 'on the road' workshop also helped us to identify new products and a detailed route report for large sections of Laos. More details can be had, by contacting us at sales@viengchampatour.com

Viengchampa Clothes Donation Programme

We have set up a clothes donation programme, collecting unwanted clothes from our staff members, and distributing them to rural villages that we encounter on our longer tours. We feel this is a particularly worthwhile project, giving back to the villages we visit, especially as the winter months approach. For more details, please contact us at sales@viengchampatour.com
